Marléna Sessions

Company: Workforce Development Council of Seattle-King County

Position: Chief executive officer, Workforce Development Council of Seattle-King County

Old position: Chief operations officer, Workforce Development Council of Seattle-King County

Biggest challenge ahead: Creating opportunities for the citizens of King County to get trained, re-trained, and back to work.

Favorite job ever: Being CEO is by far the best job, second only to my college job of telling stories to the children of Spokane as a summer job for the Parks Department.

How did you get into this line of work? A college buddy told me about an opening at an agency in Spokane called Career Path Services, where I could help young people who had dropped out of high school get their GED and a job. I was 23 at the time. That was 23 years ago and I have been in love with the field of Workforce Development ever since.

What single piece of advice would you give to someone starting out in your profession? Follow up, follow up, follow up — every detail matters and strung together, all those details form a clear big picture.
